THE JEFF DAVIS MATTER

Dr. Garnett, His Physician, on the Controversy in Question.

Davis a Hard Man to Approach—His Refusal to Adopt Means to Compel Kentucky to Secede—The Alexander Stephens Letter, Etc.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—The controversy in the Jeff Davis matter is beginning to attract considerable interest here. Dr. Garnett, of this city, who was the family physician of Mr. Davis during the war, has been interviewed by the Republican.

"I have followed the controversy in the papers with most interest," Dr. Garnett said, "and I think I can give some valuable testimony in regard to the charges General Sherman has made against Mr. Davis. I believe I know Mr. Davis as well as any man living, and I also believe no other man ever had to learn Mr. Davis's views on the question of the rights of States, General Sherman charged that Mr. Davis threatened in a letter written to a prominent Confederate General, now a Senator in Congress, to use force to compel some State to come into the Confederacy, or to yield to his wishes in some other matter."

"During the war," Dr. Garnett continued, "I was Mr. Davis's physician. In fact, I attended almost every member of the Confederate Cabinet and Government at Richmond, and was on intimate terms with all of them. Of Mr. Davis I saw a great deal, and was on more familiar terms with him than most of the members of his Cabinet and Generals of the armies. He frequently called on me, and I was familiar with the plans of the Confederates and affairs of State. The members of the Government and the army officers, knowing of my intimate relations with Mr. Davis, frequently requested me to take suggestions to him concerning matters which for any reason they deemed advisable to bring to his attention. Mr. Davis was a grave, stern, somewhat unapproachable man, and this made those about him at times loath to touch on subjects that were of doubtful result."

"You remember that during the war the status of Kentucky was not well defined. There was no testamental part of the harbor. It was a wrecked yawl boat, a quantity of sailors' clothing, splintered spars and rope lying and thirty-two battles went from vessels docked by the wharf. It is now feared that other disasters have occurred."

EARTHQUAKE SHOCK.

Evidence of Convulsions in Long Island Sound—Vessels Damaged.

NEWHAVEN, Conn., Dec. 24.—Last night at 11 o'clock an earthquake shock was felt in the harbor of the Seaman's Bethel, was preparing to go home, he felt a distinct jar of the earth. Looking out to sea lamp-post shaking. The shock was more severe than that experienced here last summer, although it was comparatively unnoted, occurring as it did at a late hour. The jar was also felt at the Central Police Station. It is now believed that there was a convulsion of the earth in Long Island Sound, directly off this harbor or near by, for at a quarter past 11 o'clock a tidal wave crowned with foam and fifty eight feet high came rolling into the bay from the South, traversing the entire length of the harbor, which is four miles long. It had a speed of about twelve miles an hour and moved with an ominous rushing sound like the blast of a hurricane, carrying destruction in its path. It was dark and cold and rainy at the time, and a light fog, which was growing denser, enveloped the scene, forming it. It is impossible to ascertain the full extent of the damage done. The schooner M. G. Green, of the Seaman's Bethel, was struck by the wave and forced to the beach. The first one to take the force of the mysterious wave was the schooner M. G. Green, of the Seaman's Bethel, City to Portsmouth, New Hampshire, with coal. The wave struck her with such force as to tear the windlass out and part the chains on both her anchor and her bow. The captain, who was on the watch, was nearly killed. The vessel was badly damaged and the crew lost everything. The schooner M. G. The captain, who was on the watch, was nearly killed. The vessel was badly damaged and the crew lost everything.

Several other small boats and vessels were either sunk or badly shaken and damaged. An ominous fog has been made at Morris Cove, near the Seaman's Bethel, part of the harbor. It was a wrecked yawl boat, a quantity of sailors' clothing, splintered spars and rope lying and thirty-two battles went from vessels docked by the wharf. HOT SHOT FROM MR. VEST

Kicking Against Printing Speeches Not Delivered.

Wm. B. Thompson, of Michigan, Second Assistant Postmaster General—Trouble About Denying Where to Establish the Proposed Catholic College.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—In the Senate Mr. Vest offered a concurrent resolution providing that the Congressional Record shall keep an accurate transcript of debates and that no speech be published which was not spoken in the Senate or House of Representatives; that no changes shall be made except verbal corrections by the author, and any speech retained for correction to be returned in a week or otherwise, to be printed from the original notes of the reporters. He stated that in the Forty-sixth, Forty-seventh and Forty-eighth Congresses, 151 speeches were printed, which were never delivered in the House, and 138 speeches were withheld for revision and printed after adjustment. The result was that in some cases Congress has been compelled to expunge from the Record speech making offensive personal attacks which in fact had never been delivered. The resolution was referred to the Committee on Printing.

Mr. Morgan, in a protest from the Commercial Exchange of New Orleans against the ratification of the Spanish Treaty. Mr. Hale called up the House bill, making a temporary appropriation for the Navy with the Senate amendment as offered by him yesterday. He again explained that this was substantially the same bill for the balance of the fiscal year. The bill was passed, the title being amended so as to read, "A bill making additional appropriations for the naval service for the fiscal year 1885," to be sent to the House for its action to-morrow.

Mr. Morgan, from the Committee on Public Lands, reported, with amendments, a bill to forfeit the lands granted to the New Orleans, Baton Rouge & Vicksburg Railroad. At 2:10 p. m. the Senate went into executive session.

The Senate in executive session adopted the House resolution admitting until the 30th of January, any amendment it by changing the date of adjournment from the 20th to the 24th.

Several calls and other vessels were either sunk or badly shaken and damaged. An ominous fog has been made at Morris Cove, near the Seaman's Bethel, part of the harbor. It was a wrecked yawl boat, a quantity of sailors' clothing, splintered spars and rope lying and thirty-two battles went from vessels docked by the wharf. MARRIED HER COACHMAN

The Rich Mrs. Britton's Peculiar Matrimonial Freak.

Disregarding Her Ancient Pedigree and the Wishes of Her Relatives—Ex-Congressman Lynch's Marriage Creates a Hubbub.

New York, Dec. 24.—The chief topic of conversation on Staten Island during the past three days has been the marriage of Mrs. Emma Britton, the widow of the late Abraham Britton, to her coachman, who is familiarly known as Tommy McLaughlin. The Brittons are a very old family on Staten Island, holding their property through a crown grant made in the early history of the colony of the Vanderburg family, also one of the old families of the island. They were neighbors of Commodore Vanderbilt when he was in the slave business and it is said that she is a relative of the Vanderbills by marriage. Mrs. Britton had been a widow for several years. She had a good estate and kept stylish coaches and horses. Some months ago she engaged Thomas McLaughlin to care for the horses. He worked a few days and then took sick and went to his home, a cottage on the Richmond road. The neighbors noticed that Mrs. Britton was a daily visitor and finally that she had to leave her elegant mansion to reside at the cottage.

When a reporter called to see if a carriage had really taken place he found young McLaughlin sitting over the kitchen stove dressed in a blue flannel shirt and hand-worked slippers. He was boyish looking, and is thin and his cheeks had a beetish flush. He is about twenty years old. He was unable to speak above a whisper. He appeared to be suffering from consumption. When he was asked to call his bride, the former Mrs. Britton entered the room dressed in a blue checked wrapper and a gingham apron. She is said to be forty years old. She said: "We are married legally and lawfully. My family know of the marriage and they are the only persons I care for. I shall not please anybody's curiosity by giving details. If I choose to marry a young man, and he was poor, that may be interfering for some others to know, but I shall not entertain them with any particulars of my courtship or marriage, or my ideas or plans hereafter."

Members of her family decline to talk about the matter further than to say they are grieved and that they are not interested in the further movements of Mrs. McLaughlin.

EX-CONGRESSMAN LYNCH'S MARRIAGE.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—The social season has been opened in Washington with a bang. The Bee, a weekly newspaper published here by colored men for their own race, has a long article on the marriage of ex-Congressman Lynch, which occurred on Thursday. Lynch is much darker than Miss Ella Summerville, his bride, and a sister of the latter, who is employed in the Government printing office, will not recognize the young wife, "because she married a nigger!" This feeling extended far into the Summerville family, and, according to the Bee, was the cause of two sets of invitations to the wedding being issued—one set for the darker, more numerous element, and the other for the whiter and aristocratic few, the former attending the brief and feastless afternoon ceremony, and the latter the swell reception and dinner in the evening.

The Bee criticizes Lynch in very harsh terms for "drawing the color line" and catering to aristocracy, though the bridegroom is quoted as alleging that he had nothing to do with the invitations. The incident has created quite a row in colored society.

All these stories, however, are denied by the friends of the newly married couple, who state that in the afternoon the bride received some of her school friends, but that no such distinctions were made in the invitations that were sent out. Some of the friends of the bride are thought to have been rather indiscreet in their remarks, which have given rise to a great deal of the gossip in the circles interested.

GRAVEYARD INSURANCE.

A Gang of Systematic Swindlers Unearthed at Metropolis, Ill.

METROPOLIS, Ill., Dec. 24.—About three weeks ago Mr. J. F. Maxwell, auditor for the Bloomington Mutual Life Insurance Company, arrived in this place and began an investigation of the management of that company's business here. According to Maxwell's statement, supported by a large number of affidavits, a syndicate here have engaged systematically in insuring extremely old persons and persons known to be afflicted with diseases which were sure to result in speedy death. On such risks as these they have procured within the past year about $5,000, and had in process of collection on deaths that have already occurred $22,000. In instances where the people have been insured entirely without their knowledge the application, physician certificate of health, etc., all being pure forgeries. In one case—that of a very old lady—a policy issued for $10,000 had lapsed because of non-payment of the assessment when finding that she was about to die. A prominent physician of the town made a written certificate of perfect health, upon which she was reinstated by the company, after she was dead. The ring, it is alleged, have also been working other companies, among them the Northwestern of Bloomington, the Northwestern of Milwaukee, the Douglas Life of Chicago, and perhaps the Perpetual League of Protection of Ashley.

Fatal Wreck.

PERVIS, Tenn., Dec. 24.—The Atlanta and New Orleans limited express train met with a frightful accident on the New Orleans & Northeastern division of the Queen & Crescent Route last night, near here. The train while running at the rate of forty miles an hour crashed into an obstruction which had been placed on the track. The engine, baggage car and two coaches were wrecked. Engineer Robert Turner and his fireman were instantly killed. The boiler sleeper left the track, but the passengers escaped. Several persons are reported to have been injured, but no definite details can be learned.

Prisoner Tortured to Death.

ORO CALIENTE, Mex., Dec. 24.—The political chief of this place is charged with imprisoning Estelán Sanchez, a man suspected of complicity with a band of robbers, for fifteen days without food and frequently tortured him during that time to make him reveal his supposed associates. As he knew of nothing, of course he could reveal nothing, and was at last released, so weak that he died the next day after release. The citizens are very indignant toward the chief and serious trouble is anticipated.
